Excerpt: . . . 11 All VA staffed clinic sites provide primary care, mental health and podiatry services. A concerted effort has been made to provide specialty services locally. In Corpus Christi, for example, an ortho-pedic surgeon visits the clinic bi-weekly. A sharing agreement with the Corpus Christi Naval Hospital provides optometry, audiology and general surgery services. The Corpus Christi clinic also has a radiology unit, pharmacy and physical therapy programs. Services are also provided in local communities through contract. In the lower Rio Grande Valley, for example, the VA, through a contract with community hospitals, provides outpatient surgery such as colonoscopies, hernia repairs and cataract surgery and short-stay admissions. Staff vacancies in several critical positions remain an ongoing problem delivering these services. Forty-eight percent of South Texas employees are over age 50 and 75 percent of senior executives are eligible for retirement. Hard to fill positions defined as few or no qualified applicants after 6 months of recruitment include dentists, police officers, pharmacists, registered nurses, social workers, physical and occupational therapists, physicians, diagnostic radiology technicians and medical technologists. The medical staff of the two large military treatment facilities, Wilford Hall Medical Center and Brooke Army Medical Center, have worked closely with the South Texas Veterans Health Care System to provide services to veterans in some areas where staffing shortages exist. After deployment of one general surgeon and the resignation of the second general surgeon at the South Texas Veterans Health Care Center, Wilford...
