Excerpt: . . . of passengers for hire and the territory of goods and live stock. But it does not seem as though the time were yet ripe for such changes, and haste in this direction should be made slowly. Before the clamor of private convenience is listened to it should be certainly and definitely decided that the interests of the public are safeguarded. The effect of letting the bars of public policy down and the freedom of contract in, where that policy has been tried, has not proven an unquestioned and indisputable success. The legislation in England registers the protest of the English people against the interpretation of the courts. Dissatisfaction is felt in New York. It is not alone the fact that common carriers are pursuing a public employment that should prevent their making contracts limiting their liability for negligence, --there are other public employments perfectly compatible with absolute limitations of such liability;--it is more because of the magnitude of the business, its monopolistic character, and the conditions and dangers surrounding its management. 1 Railroad: 1. Lockwood, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 357. 1 9 Alb. L. J. 301. The bridge, which we saw stretching ahead of us at the beginning, we have now crossed, and I think I have indicated where, with the widening of the gulf, it is destined, or at least ought, to be extended.
