Excerpt: . . . union with Him. 2nd, To desire nothing but the accomplishment of His holy will. 3rd, To remain always in tranquillity under His hand, ready to do what he should require of me. I asked for a 4th rule, and was answered, To remain always in the presence of God, like an empty vessel, ready to receive whatsoever He shall be pleased to infuse into it. The Holy Virgin, she continued, was also shown to me as the Mother and Superioress of this society. Her directors began to grow uneasy at these extraordinary manifestations. P. Sellier, who directed her in the absence of P. Varin, sternly reproved her for giving credence to fancied revelations, and bade her lay aside all her projects. Madame dHouet was but too glad to be relieved from the necessity of treading the steep and difficult ascent before her; she determined to resist with all her might every manifestation which could possibly lead her out of the ordinary path. But such was not the will of God. On the following day P. Sellier sent for her, and told her that our Lord had severely reproved him for the advice which he had given. He bids me tell you, added he, that all which has been said to you interiorly is true, and conformable to His holy will. At the same time, he foretold to her the opposition she was to meet with from his own Society, and even from himself. But, Father,...
