This definition is the main subject of the book. To consider this definition from more general point of view I started the book from consideration of Cartesian product of representations. Polymorphism of representations is a map of Cartesian product of representations which is a morphism of representations with respect to each separate independent variable. Reduced morphism of representations allows us to simplify the study of morphisms of representations. However a representation has to satisfy specific requirements for existence of reduced polymorphism of representations. It is possible that Abelian group is only λ -algebra, such that representation in this algebra admits polymorphism of representations. However, today, this statement has not been proved. Multiplicative λ -group is λ -algebra in which product is defined. The definition of tensor product of representations of Abelian multiplicative λ -group is based on properties of reduced polymorphism of representations of Abelian multiplicative λ -group. Since algebra is a module in which the product is defined, then we can use this theory to study linear map of algebra. For instance, we can study the set of linear transformations of D-algebra A as representation of algebra A^A in algebra A.
