Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Report of the Health Insurance Commission of Pennsylvania: January 1919 We realize that the principal object of our appointment, as of the appointment of similar Commissions in eight other states, was to obtain a report on the advisability of taking in this state this next step in social insurance, the insurance of the employee against sickness. The Commission was appointed on the seventeenth of October, 1917. The fifteen months which have since elapsed have enabled us to gather much information relating to the extent and nature of sickness among wage workers in Pennsylvania, its economic and social effects and the adequacy of the present methods both of treatment and of meeting the losses caused by such sickness. But the time and money at our disposal have not been sufficient to enable us to examine thoroughly, in the light of these facts, the sickness insurance systems in force in other countries or to consider the numerous modifications of these systems which have been proposed in this country. We are therefore not in a position to embody...
